Allianz Life Global High Payout Fund

Investment Objective

The Global High Payout Fund (the "Fund") feeds into Allianz Global Investors Premier Funds- Allianz Global High Payout Fund (USD) ["CIS"] and has a two-part investment strategy. Firstly, the investment manager invests in stocks from a globally diversified universe that offer a high and sustainable dividend yield. In a second step call options on these stocks are sold to generate option premium, enhancing dividends and reducing overall portfolio risk. By these means the Funds' investment objective is to provide a total return from dividend income, option premiums and capital appreciation that should lead to sustainable distributions to investors.

Investor Profile

The Fund is designed for investors who want regular and sustainable potential high payouts.

August 2018

Allianz Life Global High Payout Fund

Manager's Comment

Portfolio Highlights

The Fund registered gain of 1.61% in August, underperforming the MSCI World which rose 2.09%.

What helped

- The Fund posted a sideways performance in a difficult market environment in which high dividend stocks strongly lagged equity markets.

What hurt

- In a volatile market environment, the covered call overwriting as well as the equity dividend strategy both contributed negatively to fund performance and hence the Fund lagged global equity markets as measured by MSCI World Index as well as the Fund's customised benchmark.

Market Review & Outlook

- Global equities rose in August, though with decidedly mixed performance between the major developed markets. Strong corporate results propelled US equities to all-time highs, while Eurozone equities came under pressure from global trade worries as well as concerns over rising Italian debt levels. There was a further escalation in the trade dispute between the US and China. While the US agreed the basis of a new trade deal with Mexico, it failed to strike a new trade pact with Canada. Along with increased risk aversion on the Eurozone's periphery, the period was also marked by further sell-offs in Turkish and Argentine markets.
- While US economic data was generally robust, Eurozone monthly data continued to be mixed, as was UK economic data amid continuing Brexit uncertainty. Inflation rose in the US and UK but eased in the core Eurozone.
- Against a background of mixed economic data and rising concern surrounding Italian debt levels, the euro weakened modestly against both the US dollar and the Japanese yen. The British pound sterling also fell against the US dollar as the lack of progress in Brexit negotiations weighed on sterling assets.
- The trade conflicts between Washington, Beijing and Brussels will continue to make headlines and may lead to unexpected twists and turns ahead of the US mid-term elections. It is encouraging, however, that the US and Mexico reached a preliminary agreement in their negotiations about amendments to the North-American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). At the moment, it is difficult to gauge the impact of protectionist measures on the real economy, as import tariffs will not be implemented in full until Q3. While any tariffs will probably have a dampening effect, global growth looks set to remain above potential for some time to come, as stronger US growth should compensate for a slowdown in Europe, Japan and several emerging markets.
